dearest arthur,

by now i got my own copy of the movie and have watched it. sooo cool!! i really enjoyed it but couldn't figure out how to watch that bonus class..

really wish i could come to la. it's getting really cold here and u can really tell that the summer is ending..

enjoy the californian sun my friend:)

Thanks for taking the time to write me. I am so glad that your documentary is completed...judging by the preview it won't be dissapointing! I will have to order a copy to show to my younger students as an introduction to yoga or on my sick days...just what I needed!

Sending back good karma, A

Hi Arthur, I saw Y a year or more ago at one of your screenings and watched the final cut tonight. It was very much as I remembered it. It was a nice touch at the end to follow back up with the people and show them "today", especially the young man, good to see he is still with it and as charming as ever. I pretty much wept through most of it. So inspiring. AND I get 90 mins of Ally to practice at home, bonus!

Arthur -- Congratulations on completing your film -- as long as the journey might be, I think I underestimated the impact it would have on my own life.

Your documentary was amazing, and I marveled at the camera work as well as the editing. I am also doing much of this film myself, and while daunting, it's an amazing experience.

I will pass the word along about your film for sure!

Our film is in post production, and we'll be submitting it to festivals starting in September. So still hard at work (editing at 2am still) :)

I would love for you to share some of the wisdom you've gained along the way...as much of it has yet to sink into my brain after nearly 3 years!

I saw the Y Yoga film clip, and I can't wait to see the whole thing. If you want to post a clip of it on my comments, I'll put the Y Yoga page on my Top 8 to help promote. I loved what Shiva Rae had to say about "being" yoga, and being breathed. Its so true, the way we tend to transpose yoga into our culture with its addictions, ambitions, and arrogance. Thank you for bringing a healthy and authentic view of what yoga is to the public. A true service to humanity. You've got my support.

Hello, Ive practiced Yoga for about four months. I have heard of Yoga for a long time but I didnt have a chance to learn it until last year when a yoga teacher came to our campus. I loved it immediately. We have class only twice a week because the tuition fee is a little expensive. I am not very flexible yet but I've been making progress. Time passes quickly when practicing Yoga. I really enjoy that one hour and a half. It is the moment that I only feel my breath and body. It is so peaceful. Yoga has made me healthier as well although I've only learned it for a very short time. I wish I could learn Yoga full time and become a yoga teacher in the future. Do you think it is possible? Could you give me some advice? And I find your y movie very interesting. But the school net work is not good, I cant watch it continually. Could you let me download it? Thanks.

Namaste
Brianna
